

Southern Vineyard.

Los Angeles, April 8, 1859.

---

The new building of the Bella Union Hotel is not without attractions. The dining room is sufficiently large to seat two hundred and fifty persons at the table. The kitchen and pantry are furnished with all the modern accessories. A steam boiler, with a whistle which arouses the sluggard, admonishes the indifferent, and invites the hungry, furnishes water and steam, which are conducted by pipes to every required part of the pantry and kitchen.

---