

Southern Vineyard.

---

Los Angeles, Nov. 26, 1859.

---

---

The poisoning of dogs in the streets is a dangerous and disgusting practice, requiring the attention of the city authorities. Poison is thrown on the streets for dogs, which after eating, resort to the water ditch, where their poisoned bodies decay in the water, which is used for table and culinary purposes. It is disgusting to walk along the ditch in the morning and notice the number of dead dogs in the water.